Thank you!!

You should be able to find a package with 8 in it.

The attached sheet is something I created on Microsoft Word. This is all the student's need in a planner. If you find an inexpensive version, but the subjects don't match up, the students can modify it with labels, white-out, etc. I just don't want you to spend a lot of money on something fancy. We are just going to use it to put our homework, tests, quizzes, and projects in. If you would like, I can email this file to you as an attachment, just let me know. Staples and Office Depot can print and bind it, but they are a little pricey. If you have your own printer, you can print it and have them bind it and put a front/back cover on if you would like, or just print it and the student can put them in their binder. If you print it on 28 lb. paper or higher, I believe you can print it double-sided.
